CERTIFICATE OF DISSOLUTION

To All To Whom These Presents May Come—Greeting:

WHEREAS, It appears to my satisfaction, by duly authenticated record of the proceedings for the voluntary dissolution thereof by the unanimous consent of all the stockholders, deposited in my office, that the W. T. Hancock Company, a corporation of this State, whose principal office is situated on Main Street, in the town of Scotland Neck, County of Halifax, State of North Carolina (W. T. Hancock being the agent therein and in charge thereof, upon whom process may be served), has complied with the requirements of Chapter 21, Revisal of 1905, entitled "Corporations," preliminary to the issuing of this Certificate of Dissolution:

NOW, THEREFORE, I, J. Bryan Grimes, Secretary of the State of North Carolina, do hereby certify that the said corporation did, on the 5 day of March 1917 file in my office a duly executed and attested consent in writing to the dissolution of said corporation, executed by all the stockholders thereof, which said consent and the record of the proceedings aforesaid are now on file in my said office as provided by law.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, I have hereto set my hand and affixed my official seal at Raleigh, this 5 day of March, A. D. 1917.

J. BRYAN GRIMES,
Secretary of State.

A BILIOUS ATTACK

When you have a bilious attack your liver fails to perform its functions. You become constipated. The food you eat ferments in your stomach instead of digesting. This inflames the stomach and causes nausea, vomiting and a terrible headache. Take Chamberlain's Tablets. They will tone up your liver, clean out your stomach and you will soon be as well as ever. They only cost a quarter.

PUT CREAM IN NOSE AND STOP CATARRH

Tells How To Open Clogged Nostrils and End Head-Colds.

You feel fine in a few moments. You cold in head or catarrh will be gone. Your clogged nostrils will open. The air passages of your head will clear and you can breathe freely. No more dullness, headache; no hawking, snuffling mucous discharges or dryness; no struggling for breath at night.

Tell your druggist you want a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic cream in your nostrils, let it penetrate through every air passage of the head; soothe and heal the swollen, inflamed mucous membrane, and relief comes instantly. It is just what every cold and catarrh sufferer needs. Don't stay stuffed-up and miserable.

IF HAIR IS TURNING GRAY, USE SAGE TEA

Here's Grandmother's Recipe to Darken and Beautify Faded Hair.

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray or streaked, just an application of two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't bother to prepare the mixture; you can get this famous old recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients for 50 cents a large bottle, all ready for use. It is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color and lustre of your hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's" Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy and lustreous. This ready-to-use preparation is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire dark hair and a youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

Hot Water for Sick Headaches

Tells why everyone should drink hot water with phosphate in it before breakfast.

Headache of any kind, is caused by auto-intoxication—which means self-poisoning. Liver and bowel poisons called toxins, sucked into the blood, through the lymph ducts, excite the heart which pumps the blood so fast that it congests in the smaller arteries and veins of the head producing violent, throbbing pain and distress, called headache. You become nervous, despondent, sick, feverish and miserable, your meals sour and almost nauseate you. Then you resort to acetanilide, aspirin or the bromides which temporarily relieve but do not rid the blood of these irritating toxins.

A glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, drunk before breakfast for awhile, will not only wash these poisons from your system and cure you of headache but will cleanse, purify and freshen the entire alimentary canal.

Ask your pharmacist for a quarter pound of limestone phosphate. It is inexpensive, harmless as sugar, and almost tasteless, except for a sourish twinge which is not unpleasant.

If you aren't feeling your best, if tongue is coated or you wake up with bad taste, foul breath or have colds, indigestion, biliousness, constipation or sour, acid stomach, begin the phosphate hot water cure to rid your system of toxins and poisons.

Results are quick and it is claimed that those who continue to flush out the stomach, liver and bowels every morning never have any headache or know a miserable moment.

GLORIA'S ROMANCE

Of Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Hughes

Novelized from the Motion Picture Play of the same name by George Kleine.

Copyright, 1916, by Adelaide M. Hughes

SYNOPSIS.

Pierpont Stafford, banker and railroad magnate, with his sixteen-year-old daughter, Gloria, is wintering at Palm Beach. Gloria is a vivacious but willful young lady who chafes under the restraining hand of a governess from whom she repeatedly escapes. Her childish capers cause young Doctor Royce to fall in love with her. She steals from her room at night and in an auto plunges into the surf where she leaves the car. Becoming lost in the everglades she falls into the hands of the Seminole Indians. She is rescued and returned to her father who had offered a reward for her return. Gloria falls in love with her rescuer, Freneau. Five years later she leaves school and meets Freneau at the theater; his attention having been occupied with her sister-in-law he has forgotten Gloria. Gloria feels that her own dream is shattered. Later Freneau persuades her to forgive him. Gloria's sister-in-law, Lois, becomes intensely jealous and Doctor Royce discovers in her an ally to assist in thwarting Freneau. Doctor Royce warns Freneau that there is another woman besides Gloria; Freneau goes eloping with Gloria without her father's knowledge. It results in pneumonia for Gloria, whose family becomes incensed at Freneau when they learn the truth. Royce is summoned to alleviate Gloria's suffering. Freneau's finances being low he approaches Pierpont Stafford for a loan. Doctor Royce again warns Freneau of his conduct. But Lois, learning of Freneau's betrothal to Gloria, threatens him with dire punishment. Her husband, Gloria's brother David, becomes suspicious; he plans a trap for his wife. Freneau driven to desperation by Lois' threats agrees to spend a week with her in the Catskills. He plans to have Mulry send Gloria a bunch of telegrams. Lois' husband threatens to kill a man. After Freneau takes leave of Gloria she sees from her window an attack made upon him when he goes to meet Lois.

EIGHTH INSTALLMENT

The Mesh of Mystery.

Was it delirium or was it truth? Or part truth and part delirium? If part of both, where did truth leave off and delirium begin?

This was the problem that confronted Miss Emily Richards, night nurse to Gloria Stafford. Miss Richards sat quivering in her chair by the night lamp and watched the exquisite girl who, though quieted now by drugs, was conscious enough to be troubled. Her eyes, still filled with something of the horror they had seen or thought they had seen, turned every now and again towards the door. She was waiting for the doctor to appear there. He was searching for the body of her lover, whom she had seen—or said she had seen—murdered.

Before this unhappy moment Gloria had been progressing swiftly towards recovery from the attack of pneumonia that had struck her down on the very threshold of her marriage to Dick Freneau.

Nurse Richards' heart had already troubled her in this affair, and her heart was an organ she made a point of ignoring; at least she had cased it in such iron determination that she seldom felt it throb. But this particular patient had been so beautifully favored by the gods otherwise that her untimely illness seemed incongruously cruel.

Some day Richards might congratulate Gloria upon this disaster and realize that the gods had been cruel to be kind; but just now the knowledge could not come to sustain her. All she could see was a young girl of great beauty, great patience in the face of trying and tedious disease, one who had all to live for—wealth, a devoted father and brother, and an extraordinary handsome bridegroom who furnished the final touch to the picture.

It was really the insouciance and diablerie of the dashing Freneau, with his charming manners and somewhat wicked glances cast her way that would not have acknowledged the heaven knows, and bless us, never!

Richards had arrived as usual to relieve the day nurse. She looked on her armor of white linen in the room next to Gloria's own and as she looked from the window facing the side drive, she thought she had never beheld so beautiful a night or so beautiful a scene. Already the young moon was up and gleaming softly but purely on the noble beauty of the soldiers' and sailors' monument opposite the Stafford house. The white marble columns of that magnificent tribute to the heroes dead and gone stirred her strangely.

Richards sighed her last tribute to sentiment, romance and the beauty of the night, and, moving towards the patient's room, assumed her usual crisp and cheerful manner. As the ards came in Gloria turned to her with a wan little smile of welcome and put her hand out towards her.

She looked like a small child lying there, and the color scheme of her room—soft grays and powder blues—made an exquisite setting for the girl's own coloring type. The blue of her eyes contrasting with the delicate red of her hair, her peach-blossom skin, a baby chin, a girl's mouth, and a woman's soul, made up a total of irresistible appeal.

Just now a heavy splash of scarlet on either cheek told the nurse of unusual fever, but with her newly awakened sense of romance she attributed the condition to Gloria's probable inclination to parting with her lover. For Freneau had told her that he must leave town on business for a whole week. When he came to bid farewell the nurse left the room, returning when Freneau had gone. He left Gloria in a lonely gloom.

Gloria was fretful and restless, complaining that she did not feel ready for sleep. It was the nurse who was drowsy after the long strain of Gloria's illness.

Richards put out all the lights save the one shaded lamp by the bedside, and then she must have dozed, for the next thing she knew was that her ears were throbbing and her nerves jangling with the wild clamor of Gloria's screams.

For an instant the nurse was too horrified to move, then as her voice returned to her the fact that the voice was Gloria's penetrated to her consciousness. Gloria, indeed, was tugging at her and crying to her hysterically. Then she faintly saw her father rushed in in his dressing gown. He and Miss Richards lifted the girl's body to the bed. Then Richards reached for the telephone to call Doctor Royce, blaming herself bitterly the while for having slept at her post. Doctor Royce was not at home. His secretary promised to send him the moment he returned. The nurse did what she could.

Turning to the bed she was clutched by the groping hands of Gloria. She heard her cry:

"Save him, save him, father; they've murdered him! Let me go to him! Oh, Dick, Dick!"

Richards held the frantic girl tight in her arms and tried to soothe her as she struggled to rise from the bed again. But the eyes that looked into
